Again, the whole area of the French Empire in Europe and other parts of the globe comprise 878,62× equare miles, and by this last ac uisition Louis Napoleon nearly doubles the territory over which he reigns. The provinces abound n mineral wealth, embrace much fertile soil, and are admirably situated for purposes of commerce on the Pacific.

The time, we trust, is not far distant when the strides of Napoleon will be checked on the American Continent. Our domestic war cannot last always. The nation will come out of the struggle with an immense military organization at its command, and the Monroe doctrine, so long the basis of American policy relative to foreign interference on this continent, will be enforced in all its meaning. The French, we believe, are destined to be driven out of
